Leading Water Protection Coalition Announces Clean Water Celebration to Honor Water Heroes

Clean water heroes from across the state ranging from multi-national corporations to small sustainable farmers will be recognized for their extraordinary work to protect Georgia's water during the Georgia Water Coalition's Inaugural Clean 13 Celebration set for March 8.

The event, featuring dinner and an awards ceremony will be held from 6:30 – 9:30 p.m. at Mason Fine Art in Atlanta. Tickets are $150 each and can be purchased at <https://www.gawater.org/clean-13>.

The Celebration will honor the City of Atlanta, Cox Enterprises, Georgia Department of Natural Resources, Georgia Institute of Technology, Ladybug Farms, Macon Water Authority, Mark Masters, Chairman John Meadows, Scott Bridge Company, Solar Crowdsource, South Fork Conservancy, Storm Water Systems and United Parcel Service. Read the report at <https://www.gawater.org/clean-13/clean-13-2017-report>.

Stephanie Stuckey, Chief Resilience Officer with the City of Atlanta, is serving as chairperson of the event.

"Around the state, businesses and communities are making a difference for clean water," said Ms. Stuckey "These may seem like small projects, affecting just an isolated area, but collectively they add up to big improvements for our water and communities. This event will highlight this work and inspire others to emulate our honorees.”
